Between the hours of two and three o'clock vesterday, without any previous notice, the printers in the CHRONICLE office waited upon the editor and demanded an increase of 20 per cent. in wages paid them, to take effect this day. We declined to yield to the demand and the printers refused to go to work. Owing to this we are unable to give our pat rons our usual amount and variety of reading matter. We feel that we have a right to control our own affairs without dictation from any source. We beg the indulgence of our readers and take this method of informing them that the CHRONICLE will, in a day or two, appear with its usual amount and variety of reading matter. We regret the failure this morning. It is the first time in the history of the paper that such a thing has occurred, and the interruption will be of short duration now. We are willing to do anything reasonable and desire to pay full value for services rendered, but we do not think that we should submit to the arbitrary demands of our employees. The question is, whether the employees or the proprietors are to control the business of the office. The proprietors think they have the right and we are attempting to assert our rights. That is all, and we in making this effort, are unable to give our readers just the character of pa

A World of Good.

One of the most popular medicines now before the American public, is Hop Bitters. You see it everywhere. People take it with good effect. It builds them up. It is not as pleasant to the taste as some other Bitters as it is not a whisky drink. It is more like the old fashioned bone set tea that has done a world of good. If you don't feel just right try Hop Bitters,-Nunda News.

A NEW STORY OF LINCOLN. When Lincoln was practicing in the the days of the old-fashioned settees, a tall, slim lawver, noted for wearing a very short coat, slid along on the seat to be nearer the advocate addressing the jury. A protruding nail tore the seat of the lawyer's pantaloons. Obliged to follow his opponent immediately, there was no time to sew up the rent in the garment. A legal wag present wrote a subscription paper: "We, the undersigned, agree to pay the sums set opposite to our several names for the purpose of purchasing Brother Brown a new pair of pantaloons," Several of the lawyers put down sums ranging from 50 cents to 10 cents. The paper was presented to Lincoln, who sat opposite the rear of the advocate, who, bending over in gestienlation, made quite an exposure, Lincoln took out his pencil and wrote upon the paper: "I have nothing to contribute to the end in view." The lawyers roared with laughter; the Judge asked to see the paper, when he, too,

GUITEAU'S TRIAL.

Continuation of His Testimony in his own Behalf.

Nothing Sensational in His Revelations.

Washington, D. C. November 30.

The Court room was packed this m. as usual. Guiteau resumed the stand and identified several papers. He was questioned as to the religious tenets of the Oneida Com munity, and said he had the same belief as was entertained at the Community, and also stated what was the belief of the Community.

He then gave his experience for the past four years ; how he tramped around trying to lecture and sell his book. He also gave an account of his visit to the White House and State Department in search of a Consulship, and related how he received the inspiration to remove the Presi-

A WONDERFUL STORY.

Some gentlemen were dining together and relating their traveling adventures, when one of them dealt so much in the marvelous that it induced another to give him a lesson.

"I was once, sir," said he, "engaged in a skirmishing party. I advanced too far, was separated from my friends, and saw three Indians in pursuit of me; the horrors of the tomahawk in the hands of angry savages took possession of my mind. I considered for a moment what was to be done; most of us love life, and mine was both precious and useful to my family. I was swift of foot, and fear added to my speed. After looking back-for the country was an open one -I at length perceived that one of my enemies had outrun the others, and that well-known saying, 'Divide and conquer, occurring to me, I slackened my A RIVER'S mouth is larger than its speed and allowed him to come up. We engaged in mutual fury. I hope none here (bowing to his auditors) will doubt the result. In a few minutes he lay a corpse at my feet.

> "In this short space of time the two Indians had advanced upon me, so took again to my heels with the hope of reaching a neighboring wood, where I knew dwelt a tribe friendly to the English. This hope, however, I was forced to give up, for, on looking back, I saw one of my pursuers far before the other. I waited for him, recovering my almostexhausted breath, and soon this Indian shared the fate of the first. I had now only one enemy to deal with, but I felt fatigued, and, being near the wood, I was more desirous to save my own life than to destroy another of my fellowcreatures. I plainly perceived smoke curling up among the trees; I redoubled my speed, I prayed to Heaven, I felt assured my prayers would be granted: but at this moment the yell of the Indian's voice sounded in my ears-I even thought I felt his warm breath; there

'Why so?" asked the scribe. "Lemonade," replied the professor in his most impressive manner, "even when made from lemons in a tin vessel with soldered joints, or in a galvanized-iron vessel, will take up the lead from the one and the zinc from the other. A salt is then formed which is very unwholesome, and, when taken continually or in large quantities, absolutely poisonous. This injurious action is considerably inemonade. Consequently, the use of such vessels for lemonade should be avoided, especially if the contents are allowed to stand for any length of time. An overdose of any of these acids is bad, and they are worse when taken in the form of lemonade. Taking a Long Journey.

When one of the trains of this city came in at midnight, an old man was found sleeping in one of the seats; the conductor flashed his lantern in his face; the brakeman stirred him up, and one or two passengers looked at him carelessly, but no person seemed to belong to him. He was neat and clean, but thin and wasted by old age or privation. All sorts of troubles were mapped out on his clean, withered face, but the main thing just then was to get him awake and on his feet and out of the car. "I say, old man," yelled the conductor in a seven league voice, "get out of this; do you hear? This is Detroit. If you've got any friends they'll be looking he sank down again the next moment limp and motionless. Just then a depot hand came in. "The baggagemaster wants to know what you're goin' to do with that mite of a deal box over there. He don't want any of that kind left over, and there ain't no direction on it but 'Gracie'"-"That's her !" said the old man, and he stood up feebly. "Take me there. We're going a long, long journey—Gracie and me; a long, long journey, but it don't seem as if I knew the way right They took him into the depot and laid him on one of the benches, and put his old carpet bag under his head, but he still fretted for his "leetle Gracie-his will remember the superb painting, occupying nearly an entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled

"Christ Leaving the Practorium."

Of this magnificent painting-the most important of Dore's works-a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is absolutely impossible to secure a copy at a less price, except through this offer. The engraving represents the Savior as he is leaving the Patorium, after being condemned to crucifixion. He is descending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps stand two burly executioners, in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, with despair in their every look, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendant. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Pontius Pilate, who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Ch;ist, as he uncomplainingly descends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his

The work in this portion of the engraving is more perfect and beautiful than we had supposed could ever be executed. The expressions of the faces, the grouping of figures, and the careful attention to detail ture, are all carried out in perfection and with consummate skill. There is a very large number of figures in the work, and all are depicted with life-like faithfulness, It stands to-day unquestionably

FREE TO ALL APPLICANTS. It is a correct reproduction of the English plate, which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price who subscribed for ber will be furnished

it through the English house. The Amertcan edition will be furnished in the same size and with the same attention to perfect work as characterizes the $30 copies. The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when we announce future works, the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted, we will ship a perfect copy of the engraving "Christ Leaving the Pratorium" to any applicant. The engraving (which is a very large one) will be put in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage, which will be 10 three-cent stamps. It was at first thought 20 cents would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags is was decided to increase the thickness and strength of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be be broken except in case of an acci-dent. This necesitated an increase of charges for this purpose to 30 cents or 10 three-cent stamps.

On receipt of application we will immediately forward this superh engraving to any prepaid, when It three-cent stamps are enclosed in letter to cover postage and tube. At any time within one year we will take back the engraving and allow a credit of $3 for it in payment for any works issued by

Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be for-warded at the cost of 21 cts. each, as one tube can be used for several copies. Not more than five copies will be sent to any one address for distribution, and the name of each member of the club must be sent.
